Introduction :-

According to the U.N. declaration on the right to development –"the right to development is an inalienable human right by virtue of which every human person and all people are entitled to which all human rights and fundamental freedoms can be fully realized. The human right to development also implies the full realization of the right of people to self-determination which includes, subject to the relevant provisions of both International Covenants on Human Rights, the exercise of their inalienable right to full sovereignty over all their natural wealth and resources." The declaration further asserts that,"the human person is the central subject of development and should be the active participation and beneficiary of the right to development.

Meaning :-

COVID-19 is the name given by WHO on Feb-11-2020 for the disease caused by the novel coronavirus SARS-COV-2.It started in Wuhan, China in late2019, and has since spread worldwide. COVID-19 is an acronym that stands for coronavirus disease of 2019. A pandemic literally means a disease that stalks all people, but it had visibly unequal effects. The virus exploits our bodily and social vulnerability. It reveals our structures of division and our levels of social trust.

The response to COVID-19 prompts a basic question-how do we imagine other people & are they a problem to be managed with threats and watchful squads, a herd to be corralled, are they "human bombs" of infection? That justifies an authoritarian vision-where states servile people without their consent, beat them back on the streets without hearing them out house tired migrant workers with bleach, suppress information. The aim there is to efficiently control potential mayhem.

A more democratic way is to inform and involve people, respect their intelligence and harness their liabilities. We are not mindless "covidots" or "go corona go" cheerleaders, we are people with a stake in our own well being. Nobody wants to willfully endanger others. Listening to the actual constraints faced by various group is the best way for administrations to ally with them provide food and supplies, make room for patients, provide hand washing facilities or whatever is necessary. Our basic storylines matter. If we are repeatedly told that other humans are untrustworthy, that shapes our reality-aftermath of fires, earthquakes, epidemics and the surprising generosity that people show, writer Rebecca solnit popularized the term 'elite panic' used by disaster sociologists. Everyone panics in a disaster but when fear grips elites and they overreact with all the resources and power at their command; it can dramatically distort the situation. The worst behavior, says Solnit, causes from those who expect chaos and viciousness, and act accordingly in advance.
