The college described boasts exceptional infrastructure and academic achievements within its vicinity.

The following shall elaborate about the factor how this institute marks its distinctiveness than others.

The college's innovative approach to learning, known as BALA (Building As Learning Aid), is a testament to its commitment to providing a holistic education experience. Here's how the college integrates its infrastructure into the learning process:

1. Latin Maxims on Windows: Latin maxims with their English meanings displayed on the upper side of external windows provide students with insights into their usage, fostering a deeper understanding of legal language and concepts.
2. Landmark Cases on Outer Walls: Elaboration of landmark cases in Marathi between two windows of the outer walls engages students visually. This initiative, undertaken by the Free Legal Aid clinic, showcases 50 important Supreme Court judgments in a colorful manner, drawn from a book created by Manupatra, with appropriate credit given.
3. UDHR Articles on Pillars: Thirty pillars of the college building are adorned with articles from the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR) in an innovative display. This creative use of space reinforces the principles of human rights and encourages students to reflect on their significance.
4. Steps as Learning Tools: The steps of the college are utilized to illustrate the procedural steps involved in civil suits, criminal cases, and other legal processes. This practical demonstration enhances students' understanding of legal procedures beyond the confines of the classroom.

By incorporating these elements into the physical structure of the college, students are immersed in a learning environment that extends beyond traditional classroom settings. This holistic approach ensures that learning opportunities are maximized, allowing students to engage with legal concepts and principles in diverse ways throughout their academic journey.
